

NUCLEAR WAR WITH RUSSIA IS COMING

BUNKERAGE.com

What if?

What would you do if one day all electricity and communications systems suddenly fell dead, your wind-up radio couldn't pick up any channels, and you started to notice blindingly bright flashes in the distance?

Your world would go from day to night in an instant – assuming you are not one of the very many who will be trapped in large urban areas and instantly killed.

Several NATO countries on the continent have been trying to waken up their populations to the prospect of a near future war with Russia and to stimulate them into taking affirmative action as private individuals.

Sweden and Poland have been to the fore in this, producing easy-to-absorb brochures filled with advice on how to prepare and how to react should war or invasion come.

And yet... The sound of crickets abides in the halls of power in London as far as explicitly preparing the British people goes.

Contrast that with what impassioned clarion voices outside Westminster and Whitehall are saying:

"Russia's war against Ukraine is a step, not an end goal, for the ambition to establish spheres of influence and tear down the rule-based world order" ~ Micael Byden, Commander of Sweden's armed forces, on 13th January 2024.

"...not only will Russia continue finish off what it sees as the job in Ukraine and it, as I say, it continues to say that it will do so but then it moves on to other countries in the former Soviet space... Moldova, finish the job in Georgia and then it'll have a go at the Baltic states because the momentum of the Putin regime has got to be maintained and it's [at] that... point at which there is a real threat of war... between NATO and Russia" ~ General Richard Shirreff (ret.), ex NATO Deputy Supreme Allied Command Europe (DSACEUR) in a February 2024 interview with Dominik Presl on YouTube.

"I don't want to scare anyone, but war is no longer a concept from the past. I know it sounds devastating, especially to people of the younger generation, but we have to mentally get used to the arrival of a new era... The pre-war era. I don't exaggerate. This is becoming more and more apparent every day." ~ Donald Tusk, Polish PM, Friday 29th March 2024.

This concise brochure attempts to do what the UK Government has so far failed to: encourage the British people to start taking the prospect of World War Three seriously and to seize the initiative and start making preparations themselves.

Other NATO countries are making practical preparations

Did you know that Finland has enough nuclear war bunkering for its entire population, with room to spare?

Or that Sweden has bunkers for every resident of the country, but is nonetheless experiencing a surge in demand from private citizens looking to take the matter into their own hands and build their own?

Did you know that Germany recently called for a wholesale bunkering program to protect its major cities?

Or that the Baltic states have been building a defensive line along their border with Russia?

These are just some of the things that have been happening on the continent, while our government leaves us to figure out the threat for ourselves or to wallow in the delusions of fatalism and denialism:

“Nuclear war would kill everyone and destroy the planet!”

“Nobody would start a nuclear war because there could be no winner!”

These are just two of the mantras the average UK citizen parrots when presented with the prospect of nuclear war... yet nobody in the corridors of power, East or West, believes those things.

And certainly, nobody in extensively bunkered Switzerland, Sweden and Finland does, otherwise why would they have bothered building fallout shelters at all?

Rather, fatalism and denialism are convenient motifs that appear largely confined to the Anglosphere to keep the people from being alarmed into calling for government action.

Meanwhile, the UK government has deep bunkering and stores prepared to survive itself, and at the same time, rich people the world over are in a scramble to acquire bunkers and fill them with stocks.

And why?

Because they all know that nuclear war is survivable!

Start Prepping Now!

We all should drop what we're doing, cancel our vanity projects, and take the initiative that the German, Swedish, Norwegian, Polish, Latvian and Lithuanian governments want their people to take: become preppers.

Your bare minimum preparedness matrix should seek to mitigate or pre-empt the following threats this decade, the preparations for which to a large degree can be arranged, thankfully, to overlap:

- Banking issues caused by a cyberattack
- A second healthcare crisis / vaccine rollout
- Wholesale social unrest
- Supply chain disruption
- Heavy-handed government responses
- Conscription / national service
- Nuclear war

As well as material preparations, you should be thinking in terms of physical and psychological conditioning for what lies ahead.

That means getting in shape and informing yourself of what is going on in the world from reliable conservative sources, rather than letting the legacy / mainstream media (which serves the whims of the ruling caste in the UK) feed you with disinformation.

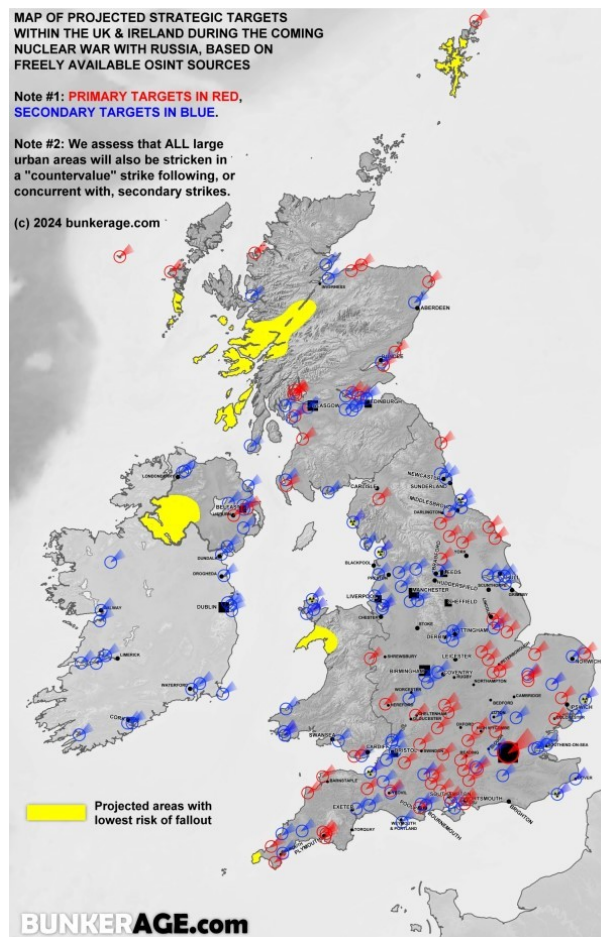

Pro-tip #1: If you properly prepare for the worst case (i.e., nuclear war), that largely covers all the other crises beneath it in the crisis ladder.

Pro-tip #2: Half of almost every conceivable preparedness concern is instantly resolved by relocating to the countryside, far from urban areas.

Preparing for the Worst: Nuclear War later this Decade

The map below shows what we assess, from OSINT sources, what the probably primary (red) and secondary (blue) targets in the UK and Ireland (yes, neutral Ireland!) would be in a nuclear war with Russia (for a fully annotated and large scale, downloadable version of this map, see our in-depth article UK Threat Matrix & Retreat Considerations on our website:

https://bunkerage.com/blog/UK_retreat_considerations

The yellow zones show the areas where fallout risk is at its lowest, based mainly on prevailing wind direction and secondarily on proximity to primary targets.

However, you do not have to move to any of those ideal areas to survive a nuclear barrage, but you do have to move away from target zones or even from close proximity to them.

Additionally, since the British establishment consciously decided not to invest in feasible civil defence bunkering for the public back in the Cold War era, you will have to think of some kind of fallout sheltering, ideally underground (for example, via a Non Material Amendment to a garage, as long as you don't compromise its foundations or damage utility connections in the process, etc.).

You would require around one foot of reinforced concrete on the ceiling of such a bunker and (if underground) at least 8 inches of concrete on the walls, or one foot thick if located above ground.

At the bare minimum, you would also need:

- an air filtration system
- drinking water for at least two weeks for every person in the shelter
- food for at least two weeks
- medical supplies
- at least one radiation meter
- bedding
- a means of heating
- cooking means + utensils
- a chemical toilet
- books
- a flat screen TV (for videos)
- a radio
- lighting
- a table / desk
- an exercise bicycle (if space permits)

There are many great resources online, free and paid, that flesh out those requirements.

We would start by recommending Joel Skousen's book, The High Security Shelter from <https://joelskousen.com/high-security-shelter> (and no, we do not receive any affiliation commissions for such recommendations), and of course, we have our own set of services, including finding suitable plots for relocation in the UK, consultations, and even project management of complete dwellings with subterranean bunkering.

Whatever you decide, what you do not want to do is succumb to the Anglosphere's nuclear war fatalism or denialism, or remotely think about leaving this issue's resolution to the last minute.

At some point around mid-decade, the new digital currencies will start be rolled out in every country and that will give government an excessive amount of power over how we conduct our financial transactions, including the power to veto purchases.

Accordingly, the window to get ready for the war is fast closing and you should be making your preparations now, even though we project the war will not arrive until 2028-29.

BUNKERAGE.com